

Welcome to the History Curriculum

“A people without the knowledge of their past history, origin and culture is like a tree without roots” Marcus Garvey

Anyone who studies History can call themselves a historian. Under the discipline of History historians gain an informed understanding of the world; they learn not to take evidence at face value and are encouraged to think critically and logically of the past and present.

Historians engage in the practice of history by using their skills of analysis with both contemporary sources and the works of other historians. Historians are thus able to transfer their skill sets to most careers and subjects as well as specific roles of archaeologist, curator, researcher and anthropologist.

Students form a strong connection with their own identity, learn to develop empathy with differing cultures and graduate as global citizens. They learn to develop the literacy skills of reading, extended-writing and critical analysis.

History at South Hunsley School

Our History curriculum at Hunsley is designed to equip students with a knowledge-rich narrative of the past. These histories are inclusive, diverse and reflect the modern society we live in today. Our curriculum aims to encourage curiosity through a love of learning, reading, research, and enquiry. It is designed to cover a wide breadth of periods whilst still allowing pupils to study in depth and consideration. In its design, our students have regular opportunities to revisit key concepts over longer periods of time.

At KS3 students study three key themes: Power and People, People's Lives, Britain and the World.

At KS4 and KS5 students follow the content advised by the exam board specification as a minimum and are encouraged to explore their potential through other related histories. Teachers make meaningful links to local history throughout the curriculum.

Our extracurricular opportunities incorporate communities from the Battlefields to Berlin, from York to New York.
